DEFINITION OF KEY MEN IN THE WAR INDUSTRIES

In connection with the current campaign for 32,000 men for the active army what constitute a "key man" and a "war industry" are clarified by instruction issued by the Department of National Defence.

The former is held to cover any man employed in a war industry whose occupation may not be interrupted without causing serious loss of effectiveness in his employer's activity. "War industry" is held to mean any employer engaged in activity essential to the successful prosecution of the war.

Application of these terms is not left to the employer, but to the authority of the National War Services Board of each administrative division under the National Resources Mobilization Act. Those who appear to be "key men" who wish to be enlisted, medically examined and then granted leave of absence to continue their civil occupation pending hearing before the board. Their employers are notified. The employer must then convince the board first that he is engaged in war industry and next that his employee is a "key man," before any further leave of absence to engage in his employment is permitted the recruit.

This routine may be varied by agreement between the man concerned, his employer and the district recruiting officer, the last of which may grant leave of absence to a man for any term deemed by the district officer commanding necessary, or suitable to cover the case, but both in this event, and in those others which involve an appeal to a board, the man must agree to the postponement of his active service. In all cases, however, the man is subject to call for service at any time prior to the expiration of his leave on eight days' notice, being given both to the man and his employer. This is again open to revision by the board who may grant an extension.

QUEENSTOWN-MILO NEWS ITEMS

(By Special Correspondent)

Received too late for last issue. The Queenstown festival executive regrets the omission in their account of the prize adjudication gave the Milo choruses besides the Queenstown rhythm bands. These items received special mention, and as such is great encouragement, the executive feels it worthy of notice.

The Milo amateur program held recently was well attended, and the contestants gave a splendid variety sign for more this time, but ladies Carry On.

of recitations, singing, tap dancing, piano solos and duets, and club swinging making it very difficult for the judges to decide the winners. The judges were Mr. Doney, teacher of music in Vulcan school and grade IX, Mrs. Oldfield and Mrs. Vivian Sammons. Special thanks was given the Milos Junior choir for its enjoyable part singing of Old Black Joe, and the Queenstown rhythm band, both being invited to the program. The proceeds of the amateur program, and the dance following went to the Junior U.P.A. to send a delegate to Edmonton for their week.

The Milo-Queenstown district sports day, at Lake McGregor was encouraged by a 100 per cent participation of schools: East Majorville, 15-neer, Giffen, Shoolie, Buffalo Hills, Eastway, The Colony, Queenstown (2 rooms) and Milo (3 rooms). The Milo teachers and officials had the grounds ready, and the program, which efficiently dealt with all sports events and five softball games by six p.m. They are to be commended for no drug in the whole day. The male winners will represent their schools at the Gleichen track meet.

THREE RECRUITS APPLY TO JOIN MILITARY CONVOY

The military convoy and recruiting party which visited Gleichen last Thursday morning gave a splendid display on the parade grounds on the Blackfoot reserve. All places of business closed up for a couple of hours so that all could see the display. Only three men applied to join.

The party consisted of about 100 officers and men equipped with a heavy gun carrier and several trucks. The Cadets under the command of P. Nelson joined the parade led by the military band. The boys turned out in full force and gave a good account of themselves.

The soldiers gave a demonstration of the efficiency of the Bren gun carrier and how it is used. The anti-tank gun carried was also opened and its mechanism explained to the crowd. In no time at all the soldiers erected barb wire entanglements and showed a mock screen and tank showed how men charge to the wire entanglement.

CHAPTER V.

Fingers of hot desert sunshine had already begun to poke into Devona's cool bedroom when she awakened next morning. In her first sleepy confusion she couldn't remember where she was. Then, with a rush, it all came back—this lovely room, this whole beautiful house, her mother—Dale!

Then she opened her eyes wide, sat up. Or was it behind her? Gradually yesterday's sense of insecurity wound smoothly through her thoughts. She mustn't stay here, they said. Yet—

She shrugged fear aside, slipped out of bed. It was too glorious a morning to be afraid of anything. Shrugging out of her wesy nightgown, Devona found the blue bathing suit—new last time that she and Dad had spent a lovely lazy holiday at Naples. Piling a wide beach cape over one arm, she slipped out into the silent, deserted hallway.

At the foot of the stairs a stealthy sound stopped her. Footsteps. Some one else awake early this gorgeous morning! She waited, listening to silence for a moment. Then, slowly, silently a side door opened. A man stepped softly into the hall, closed the door noiselessly behind him.

His gray hat was pulled close over his eyes, but he turned now. She could see his face. Slanting eyes in a yellow face. Wong! She felt her heart beat again. Only Wong! Staring at her own fright, she watched him slip across the main hall, down the corridor to the servants' quarters.

By why—the question pursued her—4 it in the morning, when all the house was taking a well-earned rest, was Wong abroad?

Then, with a shrug, she dismissed the problem. After all, what her mother's servants did was certainly none of her affair.

The first plunge into cold, green-blue water took her breath away. Then gave it back as she struck out smoothly, steadily. She loved swimming. It had been one of the few sports Dad approved. Dipping under water, she swam the length of the pool, then hoisted herself gracefully on to the tiled edge.

"Hello. What gets you out so early?" Dale's voice came to her. "Startled," she smiled up at him. "Oh—lovely morning, lovely pool." "And a lovely girl, if I may say so!" His blue eyes twinkled.

"Thank you, sir," she puffed out her cap, ran her fingers through the tangle of dark curls until she could control the thrill that chased through her. When she did look up she saw he was dressed in business gray, that he carried a bulging briefcase. "Are you—leaving?" "Yes. No rest for the wicked. I've a case in court tomorrow. I've got to do some ground work on it." "Oh, I'm sorry," and some of the glory went out of the morning. "So am I. I'd like nothing better than to race you—two pool's length." "I'd bet you," she challenged. "Not if I had to drown you first! Suppose we postpone it until next

"Through high school youngsters. These runners plant a persuasive chap where the kids hang out and get you know it you've got a bunch of marijuana-smoking boys making trouble and raising hell." "But— isn't it dangerous," Devona persisted earnestly. "There must be plenty of money to fight a drive like yours. The men who are getting rich off this racket will surely resent what you're doing." Dale laughed abruptly. "Resent it

She swam the length of the pool twice, then climbed gracefully onto the tiled edge. "Hello. What gets you out so early?" came Dale's voice over her shoulder week-end, same time, same place? You on?"

"Good. You're practically beaten now," and gave her his hand as she stepped from the tiled pool's edge to the green lawn.

"What's your case about?" she asked just to give herself time to put a checkmark on her own wild hopes. She was not making a very suspicious beginning on this plan of hers to prove she was adult when Dale's first flippant compliment turned her face into a sunset sky.

The blue eyes went grave. "Dope runner," he said. "The one in it isn't so important. But it's paying the way for a big catch."

"You mean—?" "I mean we've got a tricky problem on our hands. It's going to take some time and some good luck to solve it." He propped the heavy briefcase against a lawn chair while he lit a cigarette. "We thought we had this thing scooped a year ago. Now there's a new leak somewhere."

"How do you know?"

hardly the word for it. They winged the boss the last time we raided."

"Sure. Just like in the movies. Only difference was we didn't catch the guy that did it." He hoisted the heavy case into the coupe and opened the door.

"Oh, Dale, you must be careful." Her imagination leaped ahead tortuously. "What if—"

Dale looked down at her a long moment. "What if—what?" "I mean—maybe next time, they'll get you."

"Maybe," He grinned. "Would you care to see my car?" Devona's glance went down before the teasing challenge in his. "Certainly. It seems ridiculous to take chances."

"Don't worry. I don't. I'm supposed to solve this problem. Not make another by letting them use me for a target!" He climbed into the car, slammed the door. "That's why I have friends like Jose Macias. He keeps me posted on—well, lots of things."

"I see," Devona smiled, remembered, not without apprehension, the dark violence in Macias' handsome black eyes.

"Be careful, won't you." She tried to slide real concern behind a jaunty little smile. "I need you—for moral support, you know."

"Look here," His eyes went grave again. "Don't let any one get you down, will you?"

"Why do you say that?" "They could hurt you without half trying. You see, you're—well, different. They'll probably hate you for it at first."

"He isn't! But why?" "Because you're beautiful and young—and untamable."

"But I don't understand—" "He laughed then. A sharp, sharp little sound. "Of course, you don't. And I'm probably being an odd aunt about it. Just don't."

Wong nodded. "Good-bye now." "Bye."

She watched the black car turn out of the cool shadowy cavern the palms built around the drive, out into the bright white glare. Just down the corner he waved once, then disappeared.

Slowly she turned back toward the house. As she did she saw a white coupe disappear behind a clump of blazing poinsettia blossoms. A moment later Wong slipped through a side door into the house.

Wong again! Devona shuddered. Always tip-toeing around, turning up at the oddest moments. Had he, she wondered as she went on into the house, been eavesdropping behind that bush all the time? Anastics were a curious race. But surely Wong must have seen casual flirtations before now!

She dressed quickly—a simple, yellow linen with a trail of brown buttons from throat to hem. She'd begun learning to-day. She'd make Vera Vadine proud to be her mother. She had to! A little sob snagged in her throat. She had to—

That's a tap at her door, Wong's voice just outside. Telephone for Miss Rebourne.

"Thank you, Wong." Puzzled Devona followed him down the corridor to the little phone booth tucked behind an ornamental wrought-iron gate. Who could be calling her?

"Hello?" "Devona?"—an already familiar voice.

"Oh!" Her own voice faltered to a whisper.

"Hello! Are you there?" "Yes, Dale. Dale. I'm here."

"I just wanted to ask you not to mention the name of the person I was talking to you about just before I left." The words came crisp and clear across the wire.

"You mean—Mr.—" She caught back the name just in time. "Oh, I won't."

"It's rather important things like that don't get around. I should have warned you. Not that I think there's any danger out there. Still, it's better to be on the safe side."

"Of course. And do be careful." "Right. You say later." "Bye."

Mechanically she replaced the receiver, opened the door to the little booth. It must be strange, nerve-racking business—this work of Dale's. To be so careful, so constantly on guard.

Thoughtfully, she went back to her room. As she closed the door behind her, short, black-haired, slipped out in a white servant's jacket, slipped out of a hall closet, disappeared away, noisily down the servant's stair—

Plans Are Well-Meant

But Faderewski Answers Hoover's Idea To Feed Europe

An American correspondent reports that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt met Faderewski in Florida a few days ago and discussed with him the future of Poland. Poland is suffering a great deal more than any part of France. Germany is carrying out a systematic plan to starve the people, and the greatest enemy of the future in history, that of deliberately trying to destroy the entire Polish race by a process of starvation, shooting of the men and other means.

"Do you think," Mrs. Roosevelt asked "we should send food to Poland?" "It is difficult to make a decision concerning my countrymen," Faderewski replied, and then after meditation, he added: "But nothing should be done to disturb the British blockade."

Faderewski has given the answer to Mr. Hoover's well-meant but misguided plan to feed the peoples who are under Hitler's rule, and therefore, are his responsibility—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Gadget Operated By Electricity Tells Denomination Of Bills

A news item from Ottawa says they will have to rewrite that old phrase about "stealing money from a blind man" if the idea of a seven-cent electric light socket and which enables the operator to tell by means of electrical impulses the denomination of any bill placed in the machine.

A little black box about 10 inches square and five inches deep, the device is an adaptation of the photo-electric cell. It was produced by L. A. Hewson of Ottawa, expert on electrical sound devices.

L'Aurier hopes to display his invention at the Canadian National Exhibition this fall.

The present is never our object; the past and the present we use as means; the future only is our end. Thus we never live, we only hope to live.—Pascal.

Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and comes down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow or turning.—New Testament: James 1: 17.

Carried Postage Address

But British Post Office Delivered Letter To Proper Person

A letter from New York addressed to "Miss Jane Moore, Southeast coast of England, whose home is in nearest enemy—a bit of land that juts into the sea, England," was delivered to Miss Joan Moore, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Moore of Capel, near Folkestone.

A picture of Miss Moore feeding chickens in her garden near a crashed German airplane was reproduced in a New York newspaper. Miss Frances Simmons of New York saw it and wrote a letter ending: "Keep your chin up, fingers crossed." The picture caption didn't give Miss Moore's address. But the post office eventually traced her from the address in Miss Simmons' letter.

Nazis Constitute Children's Food

German authorities in Warsaw have confiscated (a) herrings, sausages and meats prepared for feeding children in the holidays, and (b) 15,000 pounds of lard, sausages and meat in the central stock-house of the Metropolitan Committee of Social Assistance. The latter food had been offered as gifts for the asylums and hospitals supported by the Metropolitan Committee serving the poorest class of the people.

A new cellulose cattle fodder has been put on the open market in Finland. Called "pine cats" it is made from ordinary pine wood pulp and is as nutritious as any value to cats. Due to the poor harvest last year and the import difficulties the Finns have turned to this new artificial feed for their stock. It is maintenance diet only being mixed with natural feeds for best results.

Line Elevator's Exhibit

The North-West Line Elevators Association exhibit, now reared as an institution at "B" class fairs, will be covering the circuit again this season. "A" class exhibitions at Brandon, Calgary, and possibly Regina, will also be included.

The central feature of this year's display will illustrate, by mechanical devices, the problem of controlling wind and water erosion of soil. Artificial dust and rain storms will illustrate the damage to soils from these causes. Adjacent to the damaged fields will be contouring scenes showing the results obtained when control methods are applied. This portion of the exhibit will occupy the entire back section. On one end will be displays featuring production factors to include information on weeds, insects, plant diseases, and fertilizers. The other end will contain exhibits illustrating the production of grain and legume crops, the problem of grain miles in farm granaries, and the grinding of grain.

Talking moving pictures will be shown in the exhibit as an added attraction. This will be the fourth year in succession for The North-West Line Elevators Association exhibit to be shown at "B" class exhibitions. The purpose of the exhibit this year is identical with that of former years. That is, to present something which it is hoped will be both informative and entertaining to farmers and their families spending a holiday at the fair. You are cordially invited to visit our exhibit.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE STARTS JULY FIRST

Unemployment insurance becomes an actuality in Canada from July 1st. For the workers who are subject to periods of unemployment through no fault of their own it will mean the difference between being on relief or charity and the self-respect of having provided for their own welfare through a plan of insurance and the government each makes a contribution based on the weekly savings.

The plan is one of co-operation between the employer, the employee and the government. Each makes a contribution based on the weekly wages earned by the employee. To the amount contributed by the employer and the amount deducted from the employee's wages, the government adds one-fifth of the total, and pays for the cost of operation. These contributions are similar to insurance premiums, and accumulate, against the day when the worker, either male or female, becoming unemployed. Then, in a very short time the worker begins to receive weekly cheques which will continue for a limited period of unemployment.

This, briefly, is the Unemployment Insurance Plan which becomes a law of Canada, just as it has been a law in Great Britain for more than thirty years. With co-operation of the British Act as well as the examples of other countries to draw upon, the Unemployment Insurance Commission has created a plan which should operate with the least inconvenience to the employer and to the greatest possible benefit to the workers.

A unique and simple system of making contributions to the fund through the employer purchasing special stamps from the post office and affixing them each week in a book designed for the purpose, is the record of each worker's contributions as well as the employer's. In this way every worker can find out exactly at any time where he or she stands in respect to Unemployment Insurance.

There are some classes of workers who are not eligible for Unemployment Insurance and there are certain conditions which affect all workers. Both employers and employees should familiarize themselves with the terms of the plan which will be made available by the postmaster in the locality you live.

A part of the plan is the opening of employment offices in Canada where workers may seek jobs and employers can seek workers. These offices will be opened as rapidly as possible to facilitate the most effective utilization of Canada's labor force during the war and in preparation for the return of workers to peacetime employment after the war work has ceased.

Conservation For Victory

News items appearing recently in the daily press appear to indicate that there was justification for the action of the federal government in devising measures for exercising some degree of supervision over the oil industry of the Dominion after the war broke out.

The importance of oil in the war economy can scarcely be over-emphasized. It must have occurred by this time to everybody that oil is the life-blood of the type of warfare which is being waged by belligerents on both sides. The availability of oil for fuel to drive aeroplanes and tanks and propel submarines and warships may well be the ultimate factor that will decide the outcome of the war.

There is no gaining the fact that the urgent need of oil is ever present in the minds of the enemy and that this necessity is largely behind the moves that Hitler is making on the European continent. It is true that the Germans know how to make synthetic liquid fuel and that they are doing so to an increasing degree because, at present at least, they are unable to secure nearly enough in the cheaper and more readily handled natural form, for the requirements of their war machine.

While it is true that the British and their friends control the great bulk of the world's supply of oil as it comes from the ground, it is imperative that sources of supply within the Empire be developed and conserved to the utmost degree with the thought in mind that every gallon that can be husbanded may play its part in the final and decisive battles of this conflict.

A Costly Process

A recent despatch from the Ministry referred to the success of experiments which have been undertaken by the U.S. federal bureau of mines to convert coal into gasoline and as a result it was stated that there is sufficient gasoline from this source to supply the nation's needs for 3,000 years, but from experience in Europe and England, it has been demonstrated that the hydrogenation process of extracting gasoline from coal is considerably greater than through the use of crude petroleum.

As is well known, Canada is rich in supplies of coal in the ground in Western Canada, particularly in Alberta and Saskatchewan, from which undoubtedly huge quantities of gasoline could be extracted, at a price. But to secure motor fuel for either war purposes or commercial use from this source, would not only require a great deal of money but would entail securing machinery to handle the process but would entail such expense as to constitute an economic waste, as long as crude petroleum can be secured from beneath the earth's crust.

Because of this and because of the increasingly important role which gasoline must play in the drive to victory, as well as the possibility of some of the British sources of supply falling into Nazi hands before the tide turns, the importance of conservation of all Empire sources of gasoline, in Western Canada, or elsewhere can scarcely be stressed too much.

Stop The Waste

When this factor is realized it seems an anomaly that G. C. Cottrill, the Dominion oil controller has found it necessary to issue a public warning that waste of gas, which is used in the Turner Valley fields of Alberta to lift the crude, must be stopped. The warning was inspired by the fact that the destruction of natural gas in the field by allowing it to burn in the air, is not only reducing the cheap power necessary to refine the crude oil to the surface, but, as he pointed out, "Not only is energy being wasted but the gas burned contains gasoline."

The reason which makes the stoppage of this waste highly necessary also makes it essential that existing fields of crude petroleum be developed to their maximum capacity and as rapidly as possible.

Despite a rapid increase in production in the Turner Valley field of Alberta in the past few years, production is not sufficient to meet the consumption demand of Western Canada. During 1940 Western Canada produced 8,184,862 barrels of crude oil and a recent survey showed that western provinces alone consumed 10,934,886 barrels, or nearly three million barrels more than were required for the home market, without taking into consideration potential requirements farther afield.

This means, in effect, that last year American dollars had to be purchased to supply three million barrels of gasoline for Western Canadian consumption, entailing not only the loss of the rate of exchange as between the Canadian and American dollar but also disposition of Canadian exchange which is needed in other directions for the war effort.

As long as this situation exists, with conservation of oil and Canadian exchange paramount requisites in our war economy, governmental control is not only advisable but it is imperative.

Applications for interprovincial cheese shipment must be made on forms which may be obtained from the Dairy Products Board, Ottawa, and must be submitted in triplicate to the board, unless otherwise arranged with the Board.

Prayed For Enemies

Missionary Tells Of Service Led By China's Christian General

A Canadian missionary was invited to dine with the Generalissimo and his family at the Chiang Kai-shek. After dinner, following an air raid, the guest was requested to remain and join them in their evening devotion. The Generalissimo read from the Scriptures and the three joined in prayer. This Canadian guest, writing of the Generalissimo's prayer, said: "I never expect to hear such a prayer again in all my life. He began with a simple expression of thanks for their personal safety. Then he added thanks for the courage of the nation under fire. Then he prayed for strength for the men in the field and along the firing lines; he prayed for strength for himself. But the most amazing thing in his prayer was a plea that God would help him and help China not to hate the Japanese people. He prayed for the people who are bombed for forgiveness. He prayed for the Japanese Christians, and all the suffering multitudes of Japan whose impoverishment was making the war on China possible. He prayed for the people who are bombed for forgiveness. He prayed for the Japanese Christians, and all the suffering multitudes of Japan whose impoverishment was making the war on China possible."

Working Underground

Resistance To Nazis In Occupied Countries Is Rapidly Growing

Reports of unrest in Rumania give point to stories of widespread dissatisfaction with the Nazi conquerors in the occupied countries of Europe, a dissatisfaction which, although forced to work underground at present, is an ever-present and growing threat to the German hegemony over Europe.

Current History, reporting that travellers returning to the United States from the war zone bring confirmation of persistent rumors of this underground warfare and growing threat to the German hegemony over Europe.

"In the 18th century," continues Current History, "when the Spaniards overran the Low Countries, the stubborn Netherlands formed a secret society named The Beggars to make life unendurable for the new masters. Last summer, the society of The Beggars—for 400 years extinct—was revived by daring students from the Universities of Delft and Leiden. The tactics of the 20th century Beggars were those of modern underground warfare: sabotage, secret propaganda broadcasts, signalling the position of military objectives to enemy (Dutch) planes, the assisting British agents. Their more colorful activities ranged from sniping from rooftops and knifings in the dark to the poisoning of food and drink."

"Recently the Germans arrested 37 members of The Beggars, sent 18 before the firing squad and sentenced 19 to long prison terms, hoping thus to have smashed the society. But sabotage and signalling, knifings and poisonings continued. The mysterious leader of The Beggars, a certain 'Colonel Verdun', rumored to be a Soviet spy, was captured, remained at large and active."

"In Norway resistance to the Nazi conquerors and their Norwegian traitor friends is far more widespread. Sabotage is common. Daily demonstrations are organized against the regime of the Norwegian Vichy. The Major Quisling, and his aides have frequently been attacked and beaten in out-of-the-way streets. Broadcasts from London and the United States have a considerable following in Norway, in spite of the harsh prison sentences that await anyone found guilty of listening."

Canadian Red Cross

Gives Immediate Assistance To Victims Of London's Worst Air Raid

Stunned victims of London's worst air raid received large quantities of food, clothing and blankets from the Canadian Red Cross immediately after the Nazi blitz ceased. The society's overseas headquarters, in Scotland, called Canadian headquarters: "One thousand civilians made homeless in a single hour found Canadian supplies ready for them as they emerged shocked and terrified from shelters and discovered the smoking ruins of their homes."

In the early hours of the morning officials called on the Canadian Red Cross for immediate assistance. Major Scott said in his cable, and within ten minutes clothing for men, women and children plus 1,200 blankets, were loaded into lorries and speeded into the disaster areas. The food included soups, stews, hash, cheese and jam. All other London boroughs affected by the raid also received Canadian assistance, the commissioner revealed.

"Thousands of parcels of food and clothing had been previously packed in preparation of such a blitz," he cabled.

Elsewhere in England affected areas speedily received supplies from the Canadian society and some eight thousand garments were distributed through the Women's Voluntary Services to suffering victims. Major Scott declared.

THE RUM ISSUE

BY FRED JONES
This Column Given to News of the Gleichen Branch of the Canadian Legion

Stand To!

The soldiers travelling display of infantry and armoured units has been around one circle and it appears that the demonstrations were well put on and enthusiastically received, but that the results in the way of enlisting men was disappointing. The boys do not seem to realize that not only the British Empire is on the spot but the Western Hemisphere as well. The U. S. is awake to that fact and we had better pull up our socks.

In spite of efforts of every individual organization in Canada and every unit members the railroads are still running the good old racket of charging soldiers half fare. This often comes to more than the special excursion rates run every so often and which allows cities to make the trip cheaper than the enlisted men. If the railroads don't run the country, think the boys, they must have a fair stand in somewhere. It costs anywhere between forty and sixty dollars for a soldier to come home on furlough and if he lives east and is stationed out west he goes home and comes back west and when he is sent overseas.

Tenders for the supplying of gravel for the streets are invited by the Town of Gleichen. Bids will be taken by the Secretary-Treasurer until noon, Monday June 9th.

Here is a good one. The paper and newspaper situation is acute as stated by the government sometime ago and yet a certain unit under the Imperial command recently received many huge cases of all kinds of office supplies and stationery. Canada has the paper mills right on the ground and these supplies come direct from England. Carrying coals to Newcastle as it were.

It is now claimed that the Bismark was never fifty thousand tons but thirty-five thousand tons given to the Germans. No wonder it took so many shells to sink her and where did our secret service ship slip. The chances are it got the facts but the Baldwin and Chamberlains let it slip.

It has not been given out where the German navy was heading at the time the Bismark sank the Hood but if they could have crossed the Atlantic undiscovered a ship as heavily armed as the Bismark could just about blow Halifax off the map. Few realize what huge fortresses the heavy battle ships really are.

I met our old friend Basil (Skinny) Payne and he tells me that his son Billy is now stationed at Penfold.

The big parade held Saturday through down the town section of Calgary went off well and the Canadian Vets Guard took part, equipped with tin lids, gas tanks and pack sacks well filled with everything from empty egg shells to swansdown. The old boys stopped along like old racehorses after they got their spurs and ringbones loosened up to the skirling of a Canadian pipe band. There was a huge crowd all along the route and it gave the troops a good time as they marched along. We gave Brig-Gen. Harvey the salute near the Wales and reluctantly turned eyes front at the given command but he did not realize it was word "Drinks" on the door of the Wales that allowed us up. It was given pretty warm by that time.

We are in good quarters at Currie and the rain has not affected us seriously. It may be O. K. for next year's crops but what it is doing to this year's roads is something else.

It is not for soldiers to reason why. But to do or die but we wonder why steel helmets and gas respirators are not of more use right in England than out here on the head bandaged.

Among those I have met here lately are Noel Clement formerly of Gleichen and the 15th Battalion; Colin and Mrs. Park, of Carleton Place; Valma of Bassano; Corporal Art B. and Corporal Jimmy Dring.

I have just read in the Camrose Canadian of May 28th where R.E.M. (W.O.I.) Ted Salmon and a soldier companion met recently with a serious car accident. Ted was by all accounts badly hurt and both men are in hospital. Ted was caretaker at the 32nd Battery Armouries in Gleichen some years ago and I am sure his friends will wish him a speedy recovery.

THE FUNCTIONS OF AN EDITOR

The title "editor" is sometimes misunderstood by newspaper readers, not because they want to misunderstand but because they have never been told just what the functions are of the person who holds this title. An editor, to explain it briefly, is one who supervises, revises or prepares literary matter for publication. The title does not necessarily mean that the policy of the newspaper is set or controlled by the editor. On large newspapers there are many editors, and policy is usually decided upon by the managing editor. The duties of the other editors, city, sport, suburban, women's page and others, is simply to carry out the duties prescribed in their particular spheres.

For our purpose, however, we must deal with the editor in a little different light, because in fully 90 per cent of Canada's weekly newspapers, the editor is also the publisher.

Preparing literary matter for publication, and of deciding upon policy as well. We want to deal with the functions of an editor from this standpoint.

Essentially the editor is a human being, writing and dealing with men and women. He may be young or old, lazy or energetic, bold or timid, superficial or deep, querulous or constructive, slovenly or business like, grasping or generous. He is certain to be human. He reacts to praise and criticism, to good and evil in much the same way as those who share community life with him. The editor, and this is true of 90 per cent of all weekly editors, recognizes the inherent decency of the countryside. He is still sufficiently old-fashioned to believe with his readers that the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule have neither been repealed, improved upon or modified by modern advances.

The editor is a student of community affairs. He has at his disposal records of public organizations in the community, and it is from his study of these records that makes his editorial comment. He is not easily swayed by the hysteria which away, and civic and mislead city people. Like the people he serves he uses good commonsense in his reasoning. The editors of Canada's weekly newspapers, serving the rural areas, are a greater power than most people suspect, for it is a political fact that members of provincial legislatures are elected from the rural areas rather than from the cities.

It is the editor who decides what it is and what it is not to print. It is he who differentiates between news and propaganda. It is he who, if he will, give the leadership to every energetic community organization. He is not hard to get along with, but he has a code of ethics which often cause him to refuse business rather than accept it. He is well grounded principles. He is no "super-human". He is a hard work individual doing an important job in the community to the best of his ability, and at it times he falls in his task, it must be remembered that the every other human being in the community, help to the frustration with which all mankind is endowed.

The UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE PLAN

To the Employer...

Contributions to the Unemployment Insurance Fund become payable on June 1st, 1941.

Contributions are made by the employer and the employee, and are paid by the purchase of Unemployment Insurance stamps by the employer from the Post Offices.

The employee's contributions are deducted from his wages by the employer.

Stamps will be affixed to a special book, called the Insurance Book, by the employer. The book is the employee's record of contributions, and when he becomes unemployed it forms the record from which insurance benefits may be paid. Full details will be sent to you when you have returned the postcard attached to a form which is now in the mails.

The plan of procedure has been adopted after consultation with employer and employee associations and is one which has been based upon thirty years experience in Great Britain.

The Dominion Government allows 20% to the combined employer-employee contribution.

HON. NORMAN A. McLEARY,
Minister of Labour

Contributions, and in addition, pays the administration costs which include the operation of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, a National Employment Service for the convenience of employers and employees.

Contributions are payable by all persons while in employment and by their employers, with the exceptions listed in the postal card.

The first duty of every employer will be to REGISTER WITH THE COMMISSION by completing the postcard attached to this form which is now in the mails, and obtaining and issuing insurance books for all his employees. If there is doubt as to whether an employee, or any of them, are your employees, or any of them, are your employees, ask for instructions when you return the postal card. If you do not receive a form through the mail go to the nearest Post Office and ask for one. All employers must complete registration prior to June 14th, 1941.

The Commission feels that it can be assured of the full cooperation of all employers. Nevertheless, attention is drawn to employers. Failure to register is an infraction of the law and is subject to penalties.
